IN MEMORIAM

In sad but loving remembrance of my dear Brother, Paul Calvin Brown, S 1-C, who was killed in Service January 7th, 1944.

Three years ago today dear brother
Your dear life was taken away;
Gone from us with these aching hearts of ours to stay.
Each day I miss you more and more,
Sad and sudden was the call of one so dearly loved by all.
A bitter grief, a shock severe,
It was to part with one so dear.
Gone dear one, gone forever,
How I miss your smiling face.
How I miss your loving voice.
But you left me to remember
No one on earth can take your place.
The all the world forget,
Gone is the face I loved so dear.
Gone is the voice I long to hear.
It's sad but true, we wonder why,
The rest is always first to die.
I did not know the pain you had,
I did not see you die.
If only I could have been by your side,
And said a last Good Bye.

Sadly missed by Sister,
Mrs. J. H. Spiggle,

In sad but loving memory of our dear son, Paul Calvin Brown, S 1-C, who was killed in service, Jan. 7, 1944.

Today brings sad memories,
Of a sad and dreadful day;
When you were on duty,
And were suddenly taken away.

Though you were so young,
You made the supreme sacrifice,
Bravely gave your all.
The day that awful message came

I felt my heart would break when
They told me you had died.
No one knows how we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain.
We have suffered since we lost you
Life has never been the same.

They say time heals a broken heart
But, Oh, it seems untrue, for
Three years have slowly passed
away,
And our hearts still long for you.

You left behind some broken hearts,
That loved you so sincere,
That never did or ever will
Forget you, Calvin dear.

Wartime Landing Mats Are Sold for Use as Corn Cribs

WASHINGTON. — Airplane landing mats which saw wartime service in Europe and the Pacific are now being sold for use as corn cribs in the midwest.

War Assets administration announced it had sold 4,196,262 square feet of surplus landing mats stored at Kankakee, Ill., to 40 bidders who certified they will convert them into corn storage cribs for farm use.

The cribs will go up on farms in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska and South Dakota. The mats were set aside by WAA on request of the agriculture department which declared they were needed to prevent impairment to food production. The mats were sold for a total of $125,887, WAA said.

Muddy Street Problem Solved By Use of Pulpwood Bark

BRAINERD, MINN. — Brainerd has solved its muddy street problem with another of those wartime created substitutes.

The city used to dump cinders on its dirt streets. During the war somebody thought of using pulpwood bark, the residue left from milling. After the first rain, the streets resembled mush. But they hardened as the resinous substance left after the fiber decomposed and combined with sand to form a heavy crust.

Now even bulldozers and garbage trucks can be driven over the once-muddy streets.

To Study Use of Atomic Energy

New Laboratories Will Seek Method of Applying Power to Industry.

WASHINGTON—The war department has announced plans for a 20 million dollar laboratory near Schenectedy, N. Y., to study the generation of power from atomic energy. It will be the fourth big government-sponsored laboratory for atomic energy research but the first to be devoted primarily to studying how the new force may be used to provide power for industrial and commercial purposes.

General Electric Co. will build and operate the project adjoining a huge new laboratory of its own where the company's fundamental research in other fields will be concentrated. The two laboratories will be separate but will be operated together.

Study Many Angles

The Clinton laboratory at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and the Argonne National laboratory at Chicago, in which educational institutions and industrial organizations are participating, are carrying out broad research programs on many angles of atomic energy. A third project of this general nature, the Brookhaven National laboratory to be operated by a corporation formed by nine eastern universities, is under construction on Long Island.

The Schenectedy project, named the Knolls Atomic Power laboratory, will have a uranium reactor for the experimental production of nuclear power. This will be in charge of Dr. C. G. Kingdon, who was one of the first to work on uranium 235.

"The detailed study of the problems of construction of an atomic power reactor for power production involves major contributions from chemistry, chemical engineering, metallurgy, electrical and mechanical engineering," said a statement by Dr. Kingdon.

Need 2,000 Experts.

"For this reason, scientists specializing in these fields will compose a considerable proportion of the group working on the new program."

Dr. C. G. Suits, vice president and director of research for G. E., will have general supervision of the program.

In addition to the uranium reactor, the Knolls laboratory will have powerful atom smashers and a "hot" chemistry laboratory where radioactive materials can be handled and reactions studied.

The Knolls and the adjoining G. E. laboratory will require some 450 scientists and 1,600 technicians when in full operation. A number of scientists from the army's Manhattan project already have joined the staff.

Although announcement of the new project was made by the army, its control will be turned over to the new civilian atomic energy commission by June 30 by David E. Lilienthal when its organization is complete. The commission is to supplant the army entirely in the atomic energy field, but President Truman and other officials have said that the transfer will take some months.

In addition to research work in atomic power development, the Knolls laboratory will conduct research on specific problems in connection with the Hanford, Wash. project.

Uncle Sam Says

Ponder these facts, niece and nephew. In 1937 many Americans bought the Series C Savings Bond, similar in every respect to the present Series E bond which millions of you are now buying regularly through payroll savings or at your bank or post office.

During 1947 the Treasury Department will hand over $4 for every $3 these wise Americans laid away 10 years ago. The total payoff in interest is a staggering sum—over $100,000,000. Nearly 75 per cent of all buyers of Series C bonds held on to them for the full 10 years. You have the opportunity now to join your fellow Americans who will share in the Treasury Department's 1957 payoff of an extra dollar for every $3 you invest now in Savings Bonds.

Hunter Gets License; Bags Mallard Without Hunting

MOUNT CARMEL, ILL. — C. W. Fells of nearby Keensburg bought his duck hunter's stamp at the post office just in time.

En route home after making the purchase, an object smashed through his automobile windshield. He stopped, switched on the car light and there in the seat beside him was a mallard duck—bagged legally, or was it?

LOUISE CAMPBELL BRIDE OF D. A. CHRISTIAN, III

In a setting of Christmas greens, white flowers, poinsettias and tall standards bearing lighted tapers, Miss Louise Montgomery Campbell, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Glenn C. New Type Shotshell Cuts Game Losses

Load Provides a Uniformity of Pattern and String.

EAST ALTON, ILL.—A radically new type shotshell with an expanding cup wad that completely seals the entire force of the powder behind the shot pellets has been introduced for limited use by hunters for the first time this year.

The new wad, shaped like an umbrella, expands as it is forced up the barrel and seals the expanding powder gas behind it like the leather washer of a pump. The nose of the new shell has a folding waved crimp which eliminates the old style top wad that deflected pellets as they left the gun muzzle.

The new load, climaxing 50 years of research and development, was announced by John M. Olin, president of Olin Industries, Inc., who said it has been adopted as standard in both Winchester and Western game, skeet and trap loads, and would be furnished by both companies in all shotshells as soon as sufficient new loading machines are available.

The cup wad prevents leakage of powder gas ahead of the shot pellets and propels them with minimum deformation from the gun muzzle in what are described as remarkably uniform shot patterns and shot strings. A "string" is the side-to-side distribution of the oncoming pellets as they strike a target and a "string" is their lengthwise distribution.

Thus its greater uniformity of shot pattern and shot string, the new shot shell eliminates to a greater extent than ever before the faulty patterns which previously crippled game, a sizable percentage of which got away and was wasted.

The new type wadless folded crimp on the nose of the new shell opens when fired, eliminating the old style "top wad" which previously deflected shot in flight. A waterproof non-sticking wax lubricating compound is used to seal the wadless crimp against moisture.

House Committee Finds No Evidence of Atom Spy Ring

WASHINGTON.—Chairman Wood (Dem., Ga.) said the house committee on un-American activities had not discovered any spy ring seeking to steal this nation's atomic bomb secrets. Wood said the committee had been checking reports about such a ring for more than a year without success. He said the probe would continue.

Uncle Sam Says

You have heard people say, "why save at a time when prices are going up?" We cannot all be economists; and it is perhaps just as well, for they seem to differ a great deal among themselves about the future. But we all know this: A man who saved a dollar 10 years ago is better off today than the man who didn't; and other things being equal, the man who saves a dollar today will be better off in 1957 than the man who doesn't.

United States Savings Bonds offer you the opportunity to save at a profit. Thus every $3 you lay away now will come back to you in 1957 with an extra dollar in interest. You don't have to be an economist to know a good thing when you see it.
